Pro Quarterback Promoting Youth Wellness in Ontario

He’s a quarterback for the San Diego Chargers and a homegrown success story that goes back to setting records at Burns High School and playing for the University of Oregon. You’re invited to welcome Kellen Clemens back to his eastern Oregon roots for a special assembly at Ontario High School on Wednesday, April 13, to talk about the importance of nutrition, exercise and teamwork.

What: Ontario High School Assembly to kick off Fuel Up to Play 60 efforts
Where: Ontario High School, 1115 W. Idaho Ave., Ontario, OR, in the gymnasium
Who: NFL Quarterback Kellen Clemens, Superintendent Nicole Albisu, Principal Andy Kovach, students, members of the faculty and school board, representatives from the Oregon Dairy and Nutrition Council, and other invited guests
Why: Fuel Up to Play 60 is an in-school nutrition and physical activity program created by the National Dairy Council and the NFL, in collaboration with the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Inspired and led by youth, it empowers students to eat healthy, be active and make positive changes in their schools and communities.

Clemens will speak to the entire student body at a special assembly about youth wellness and stay for a question and answer session following the presentation. After providing an overview of his background, he will address the importance of healthy eating and being physically active. He’ll also talk about the value of teamwork, giving thanks and service to others.

While at the school, Clemens will also meet with high school administrators, talk with community and student leaders, visit a P.E. class, sign autographs and offer photo opportunities. Media is invited and encouraged to photograph/record the event.

Questions or requests for special accommodations can be directed to Crista Hawkins, Manager of School Programs, Oregon Dairy and Nutrition Council, 971-409-0001 or chawkins@odncouncil.org.
